To imagine global change - beyond thought and through emotion

Vanessa de Oliveira Andreotti, professor in Education for Sustainable Development and holder of the Canada Research Chair in Race, Inequalities and Global Change at University of British Columbia will present a pedagogical experiment that invites conversations about our collective existence in a planet facing unprecedented crises. How can we inspire to act and ask differently in a world that requires new and creative approaches?

Vanessa has extensive experience working across sectors internationally in areas related to global justice, sustainability, community engagement, indigenous knowledge systems and internationalization.
